Miss June Rambo

In a setting of French 'Old Lace' and taffeta became the bride of Joseph Kosko Jr.—Seaman Photo.

Soft Candlelight Sets Scene For Double Ring Ceremony

Looking lovely in lace and taffeta, Miss June Rambo was married in a double ring ceremony to Joseph Kosko Jr., in a candlelight setting at the First Methodist church on August 18, at 7:30 p.m. The bride was given away by her father, Jiles W. Rambo. Reverend John L. Taylor officiated.

The bride looked lovely in her Maurer original-made of imported French 'old lace,' over taffeta. Bodice of dress was made of net with French lace set over it. Neckline was edged in lace which gave an effect of a collar. Buttons in back which closed to the waistline matched the four buttons on the sleeve that closed to the wrist. Sleeves also came to a finger-tip point. The skirt was beautifully bouffant with a chapel length train four feet long.

Her cap was outlined in seed pearls and the veil was made of net. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds, carnations and stephanotis set in a colonial design.

Candlelighters were Ellen Koehn and Beverly Harrington whose gowns were made of yellow chiffon and who wore bands of blue flowers in their hair.

Their corsages were made of yellow rosebuds. Matron-of-honor was Mrs. Jack Rambo, (sister-in-law of the bride) who wore a blue chiffon gown and a sweetheart hat. She carried a corsage made of yellow rosebuds set in a colonial design.

Bridemaids were Janie Moffatt, Frances Cannon, (cousin of the groom) and Kay Hutchinson. Their gowns were alike in blue chiffon and they carried corsages of yellow rosebuds set

Fashion Now-a-days Have The 'Look of Knowledge'

The 'Look of Knowledge' hinges not only on grammar or on mathematical figures, but our little Miss Knowledge of today is full of facts when it comes to styles and fabrics. She knows what she wants when it comes to styles, whether it be tennis, skiing, or school time wear.

Fashion-wise, the look for little misses this fall is cosmopolitan . . . anything from the French inspired to the English and story book styles to choose from.

English inspired tweeds have gone American in full force with coats, suits, and tweedy knits in a host of rich colors for fall.

Straight from 'Little Women' are tintype prints and provincial pattern dresses. Charmingly styled with high ruffled or banded necklines and full skirts.

Ivy League Setting the pace in sportswear is the Ivy League look! Everything is striped . . . blazer jackets, caps, dark-toned shirts. The Ivy Bermudas and cable stitch hose are popular with modern misses of all ages.

Patricia McVey (see photo) is wearing a sheath skirt, with a pretty Tyrolean blouse made of white cotton. This little blouse can indeed lead to a conversation with its animal farm imprint upon the front of it. Button down the front with a tucked pleat on each side for that correct fit and short puffed sleeves to match the Peter Pan collar.

Her skirt is made of 100 per cent wool. Has a belted waistline with zipper down the back. Also two front pockets and a three button fake panel down the front.

Blouse and skirt come in sizes ranging from 7-14 years.

A fashionable coordinate, which is always in good taste is being worn by Colleen O'Hora. Definitely Swiss in style . . . these coordinates are dyed to match each other.

Blouse has a little turn-over collar and short turn-up sleeves. It's made of wool jersey and is completely washable. Sizes: 7-14 years, subteen.

The skirt is 100 per cent wool twxtwr, with a contour belt. Skirt is gathered in soft folding pleats at the waistline, is full enough to wear with or without crinoline. Sizes ranging from 8-14 years, subteen.
